November 30, 2021

We had Karen at our church in November 2019 and it was a wonderful event. The families at our church were excited to invite their friends, family, neighbors, and coworkers to a special evening where they would hear a beautiful concert with a wonderful message. It was a great evening!

You expect Karen to be a high-quality pianist, which she certainly is. But what is surprising is what a gifted speaker she is as well. Karen has the ability to speak so clearly and so naturally. When you listen to her, you feel like you are sitting with her in her living room or at a coffee shop. She does a wonderful job sharing personal stories and using illustrations of music to show how personally God is at work in each of our lives through various seasons. Those who attend will hear about how they can look to Him for hope and encouragement.

I would highly encourage you to invite Karen for an event at your church or a private event. Those who attend will be blessed!

To whom it may concern,

It's my privilege to share with you the joyful experience I had to work with Karen Purpero during a recent ministry event.

Karen was committed to understanding our program goals completely so that her contribution fit perfectly. Through her musical performance she gained the attention and respect of our guests and when she shared her stories she touched their hearts. God truly spoke through the combination of her classical music performance and the sharing of some of her life story. I am sure each of our guests left feeling that they had been part of a very special evening.

I would recommend Karen highly to any group. Clearly God has given her special talents and she is committed to using those talents to glorify the Lord.

Warmly in Christ,

Karen Purpero is one of the easiest and most natural performers and speakers that I have worked with. I have organized over 90 outreaches in Switzerland to reach English speaking non-Christians in the international community. Karen did three outreaches for us throughout Switzerland - in Bern, St. Gallen, and Zurich - as well as a Christmas Gala event in Basel in 2009 for the Day Away Association for Women (see www.dayaway.org). Karen listened carefully to what the organizers wanted her to do - and she followed their lead - while at the same time giving highly effective and professional performances in her speaking and playing. She has a commitment to excellence and a desire to serve and minister wherever she goes. And - I still enjoy listening to her piano CD.

To whom it may concern,

Being an outstanding pianist and an inspirational speaker at the same time, Karen captivates and opens the heart of her audience. Karen is vulnerable and transparent in her talk, which helps the listener to recognize that there is hope for them and understand that God has a plan and directions for their life as well. She communicates her story in a nonthreatening way, making the audience hungry to know more about God. Karen has the distinguished ability to meet people at their individual level. Karen's performance convinced me that she can speak to any audience. Our international ministry, consisting mainly of professionals and members of the diplomatic community, would have her back by popular demand any time.
